

Congressman Moran Wins Family Research Council's "True Blue" Award

Receives Honor for Unwavering Support of Family Values Votes

WASHINGTON, D.C., - Congressman Jerry Moran has been recognized as a "True Blue" Member of Congress by Family Research Council (FRC) Action and Focus Action for unwavering commitment and consistent support in defense of the family.

"I am honored to be given this award for my votes to protect family values," Moran said. "Since coming to Congress more than 13 years ago, I have voted to protect and preserve the way of life in Kansas. Faith and family values have been, and will always be a top priority for me as I serve and represent Kansans."

The award honors Members of Congress who have exhibited extraordinary leadership and commitment to the defense of family, faith, and freedom, according to FRC Action's scorecard covering the votes of the 110th Congress. Recipients of the "True Blue" Award voted consistently for pro-family issues.

“Members of the 110th Congress who receive this award have shown themselves to be consistent defenders of faith, family, and freedom,” said FRC Action President Tony Perkins. “I applaud these Members for upholding marriage and family even in the face of hostile opposition from the hostile liberal leadership.”

“Voters should be encouraged by the commitment these True Blue Members have shown,” concluded Perkins.
